

https://dspace.org/

A case study of the English language practices of six learners in a desegregated urban South African school.

Makubalo, George V K

2006-11-13T10:57:04Z
http://hdl.handle.net/10539/1631

Downloaded from a DSpace repository. https://dspace.org/

CONTENTS

1. INTRODUCTION AND RATIONALE……..... 6

1.1 General Introduction…… 6
1.2 Research Aims……. 7
1.3 Rationale…….. 7
1.4 Research Questions……..16
1.5 Chapter Outline……16

2. THEORETICAL FRAMEWORK AND LITERATURE REVIEW…….. 18

2.1 Introduction…….....18
2.2 'Capital' and Symbolic Power……19
2.3 Language and Post-structuralism…….....22
2.4 Identities in Transition……24
2.5 Language and Positioning……26
2.6 From 'Motivation' to 'Investment'…… 27
2.7 Linguistic Imperialism and the Worldliness of English…….. 28
2.8 The Power and global spread of English……. 30
2.9 Towards the Indigenisation of English…….....32
2.10 Multilingualism: An obstacle or resource……..34
2.11 'Investment' in English……..37
2.12 Conclusion…… 39

3. RESEARCH METHODOLOGY……..... 41

3.1 Introduction……..41
3.2 Research Design…….. 41
3.3 Research Context……43
3.4 Research Participants……...46
3.5 Research Process…… 48
3.5.1 Entry…… 48
3.5.2 Data Collection……49
3.6 Transcription……51
3.7 Methods of Data Analysis……52
3.8 Conclusion……... 53

4. DATA ANALYSIS……...54

4.1 Introduction……..54
4.2 Thabo……... 56
4.3 Teboho……63
4.4 Anna……68
4.5 The salience of English……74
4.6 English varieties and accents……... 76
4.7 The position of Zulu…….79
4.8 Subverting institutional discourses…….. 81
4.9 The construction of 'Race'……82

4.10 Conclusion……...83

5. CONCLUSION……...86

5.1 Introduction……86
5.2 Conclusions, limitations and significance of study……86
5.3 Implications for English language education and conclusion……90

APPENDICES……92

Appendix 1……92
Appendix 2……97
Appendix 3……102
Appendix 4……106

REFERENCES……108