Transforming Literacy Teaching

A teacher’s experience of implementing Critical literacy and Philosophy for Children in a Grade Three South African Classroom

Nicolette Anastassopoulos

Student Number 0207162X

A research report submitted to the Wits School of Education, Faculty of Humanities, and University of the Witwatersrand in partial fulfilment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Education by combination of coursework and research.

Johannesburg 2013
Declaration

I, Nicolette Anastassopoulos, hereby declare that the contents of this research report represent my own unaided work and that the research report has not previously been submitted for academic examination towards any qualification. Furthermore, it represents my own opinions and not those of the University of the Witwatersrand. I am aware that the plagiarism (the use of someone else’s work without permission and/or without acknowledging the original source is wrong. I have followed the required conventions in referencing the thoughts and ideas of others. I understand that the University of the Witwatersrand may take disciplinary action against me if there is a belief that this is not my own unaided work or that I have failed to acknowledge the source of the ideas in my writing.

Nicolette Anastassopoulos: ____________________________

Place: ____________________________

Date: ____________________________
Abstract

Philosophy for Children (P4C) and Critical Literacy (CL) are orientations that embrace a socio-cultural perspective to literacy by including the life-worlds of children. They also encourage meta-cognitive thinking by encouraging children to explore written texts. The focus of this qualitative project research was to explore the impact of implementing CL and P4C in a Grade Three classroom using a Community of Enquiry, and the stimulus of a picturebook, The Tunnel by Anthony Browne, (1989). The researcher explored the impact of this intervention on the teacher as well as the children.

The data collection consisted of the teacher’s reflective journal, transcripts from six Communities of Enquiry and the children’s creative writing and artwork in the form of picturebooks. The data collection indicated two main findings. Firstly, teaching in the CoE required a different discourse for the teacher. Secondly, the children’s experience of literacy was enriched by adopting a socio-cultural perspective that enabled them to explore and critique their worlds. The overall positive results indicate that implementing these two approaches enriched the children’s creative, critical and collaborative thinking, while improving relationships in the classroom. Further research could help to broaden and develop the scope of this study as it was a small-scale study in a private, middle class school in Johannesburg.
List of Acronyms and Abbreviations

ACSI: Association of Christian Schools International
CL: Critical Literacy
CoE: Community of Enquiry
GED: Gauteng Education Department
HOD: Head of Department
NAPTOSA: National Professional Teacher’s Association of South Africa
P4C: Philosophy for Children
PWC: Philosophy With Children
OFSTED: The office for inspecting standards in the United Kingdom. It reports directly to parliament and is considered to be independent and impartial.
Acknowledgements

A special word of thanks to the following people:

Doctor Kerryn Dixon (my supervisor):

Thank you for taking me under your wing and sharing your valuable wisdom and guidance in writing this research project. Your razor sharp mind has challenged and inspired me.

Professor Karin Murris (my co-supervisor):

Thank you for taking me back to my roots by introducing me to Socratic Teaching. His death was not in vain and echoes through the passages of time to impact a teacher like me in the 21st century.

My friends:

To my friends who encouraged and supported and prayed for me during the process of writing a research project. Without your support this project would not have been possible.

My school:

A big thank you to the school, that provided a research site for this intervention. Mr Bastien Norel, thank you for believing in me and allowing me to try out new ideas in my classroom. You are the model of a democratic headmaster. Thank you to the research participants, I had so much fun with you and would do it all over again if I could, despite some shaky moments, when I wanted to take over and be a bossy teacher. Your voices echo through my life and I will never forget those moments with you. Thank you for providing me with all those moments of ‘disequilibruim’. I was amazed by your wisdom and insight.

My Father:

I am so grateful for having you in my life. Thank you for always believing in me and seeing the best in me, despite my weaknesses. This project is dedicated to you because you have given my heart a voice.
Contents

Chapter One: Introduction

1.1 Preamble ........................................... 1
1.2 Research Questions ......................... 3
1.3 Rationale ......................................... 3
1.4 Overview of the Research Report ........... 5

Chapter Two: Literature Review

2.1 Introduction ....................................... 7
2.2 The Roots of Philosophy For Children .... 7
2.3 Philosophy for Children and Literacy .... 8
2.3.1 The Community of Enquiry ............... 9
2.3.2 Philosophy for Children and Reading. 10
2.3.3 Oral Communication ....................... 10
2.3.4 The CoE and Cooperative Thinking. .... 12
2.3.5 Higher Order Thinking .................... 14
2.4 Socratic Teaching .............................. 14
2.5 Education for Democracy .................... 15
2.6 The Roots of Critical Literacy .............. 16
2.7 Critical Literacy - A definition ........... 17
2.8 Critical Literacy in the Classroom. ....... 17
2.8.1 The Principles of Critical Literacy ...... 18
2.9.2 The Implications of Critical Literacy in the classroom 19
2.9 Criticisms of Critical Literacy ............. 20
2.10 Conclusion ....................................... 21

Chapter Three: Research Methodology ........................................... 23
3.1 Introduction ....................................... 23
3.2 Research Design ............................... 23
3.2.1 Research Site ............................... 24
3.2.2 Research Participants .................... 25
3.2.3 The Teacher ................................. 27
3.3 Outline of Research Intervention ......... 27
3.3.1 The data collection ....................... 27
3.3.2 The Stimulus 27
3.3.3 Collection of Artefacts 30
3.3.4 Reflective journal 31

3.4 Data Analysis 31
3.4.1 Reliability and Validity 33

3.5 Ethical Considerations 34

3.6 Limitations of the Design 34

3.7 Conclusion 34

Chapter Four: Data analysis and Research Findings 36

4.1 Introduction 36

4.2 Reflections on my Pedagogy 37
4.2.1 Layout of Class 38
4.2.2 Listening ‘Philosophically’ 40
4.2.3 Questioning ‘Philosophically’ 43

4.3 The Children’s Engagement with Critical Literacy Topics 48
4.3.1 Gender Stereotypes – Challenging Assumptions 48
4.3.2 Ways in which the children challenged each other 51
4.3.3 Ben and Shawn – Enacting Change 54

4.4 The Children’s Engagement with Philosophical Topics 56
4.4.1 Creative Thinking 57
4.4.2 Critical and Caring Thinking 62
4.4.3 Collaborative Thinking 64
4.4.4 Ellen – The Unexpected Consequences of Implementing the CoE 67

4.5 Conclusion 68
Chapter Five: Conclusion and Discussion

5.1 Introduction

5.2 Reflections on the Findings

5.2.1 How The Implementation Changed My Teaching

5.2.2 The Children’s Engagement with Critical Literacy Topics

5.2.3 The Children’s Engagement in Philosophical Concepts

5.3 Research Implications and Recommendations

References

List of Appendices

Appendix 1: Examples of Philosophical Questions

Appendix 2: P4C Critical, Caring, Collaborative Thinking Skills

Appendix 3: Examples of the Children’s Picturebooks

Appendix 4: Headmaster Consent forms

Appendix 5: School Consent Form.

Appendix 6: Parent/Guardian Letter and Consent Forms

Appendix 7: Children’s Letter and Consent Forms
List of Figures

FIGURE 2: My Classroom Layout 38
FIGURE 3: My Classroom in the CoE layout 39
FIGURE 4: The Front Cover of the Tunnel 40
FIGURE 5: The Brother turned to Stone 44
FIGURE 6: The Art tunnel by Brent 59
FIGURE 7: The Haunted Tunnel by Ben 59
FIGURE 8: The Haunted Tunnel continued 59
FIGURE 9: The Haunted Tunnel by Ellen 60
LIST OF TABLES

Table 1: A Comparison between Critical Literacy and Philosophy for Children 21
Table 2: Male research Participants 25
Table 3: Female Research participants 26
Table 4: An Outline of the Enquiries and Lessons 29
Table 5: Titles of the Children’s Picturebooks 31
Table 6: Assumptions Made and Challenged 49
Table 7: Constructions of Gender 50