TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION .................................................................................................1
 1.1 Women’s health in the realm of PMTCT as a development concern………1
 1.2 Defining Development and Media .................................................................3
 1.3 Media coverage of HIV/AIDS and women in the realm of PMTCT………5
 1.4 Rationale and Aim .......................................................................................8
 1.5 Research Questions ....................................................................................9
 1.6 Chapter Overview .....................................................................................10

CHAPTER 2: THE CASE OF PMTCT IN SOUTH AFRICA—A LITERATURE REVIEW ........................................................................................................12
 2.1 PMTCT in South Africa – A women’s health concern .........................12
 2.2 PMTCT Debates- The political history of HIV/AIDS in South Africa....16
 2.3 Current Debates of ‘resistance’ to Nevirapine ......................................19
 2.4 Issues of women’s health and human development within the realm of PMTCT in South Africa .................................................................22

CHAPTER 3: RETHINKING MEDIA FOR DEVELOPMENT ..........................26
 3.1 Development Communications: Frameworks for media for development.................................................................................................27
    3.1.1 The Modernization Thesis for Development Communication...29
    3.1.2 Critiques about the ‘top-down’ thesis ...........................................30
    3.1.3 Participatory or Empowerment Framework for Development Communication.................................................................32
    3.1.4 Critical perspective of the ‘bottom-up’ framework .................34
    3.1.5 De-silencing Women: Feminist critiques of Development Communication Frameworks .........................................................36
 3.2 News media in the context of the newly democratic South Africa......38
    3.2.1 Portfolio for a democratic press ..................................................40
 3.3 News media as a profit-driven enterprise ...........................................41
    3.3.1 News media ownership in South Africa ....................................44
    3.3.2 Demands of consumers and citizens .......................................46
 3.4 How to promote social change within the text ..................................48
    3.4.1 The journalistic culture of News Values ..................................48
    3.4.2 The use of Media Advocacy for Development ......................51

CHAPTER 4: METHODOLOGY .......................................................................56
 4.1 The value of Qualitative methods............................................................57
 4.2 Data Collection .....................................................................................59
    4.2.1 News articles pertaining PMTCT issues .................................60
    4.2.2 Semi-structured in-depth interviews with stakeholders in the case of PMTCT and women’s health ........................................62
 4.3 Data Analysis: Thematic Content Analysis ........................................68
 4.2 Discussion of methods: The quality and limitations ............................72
CHAPTER 5: PRESENTATION OF FINDINGS..................................................76
  5.1 Summary of news articles from the Star and the Mail and Guardian in relation to PMTCT and women’s health..................................................77
  5.2 Thematisation of news articles..............................................................81
  5.3 Summary of interviews from media practitioners and health professionals..........................................................87
  5.4 Thematisation of interview responses..................................................90

CHAPTER 6: ANALYSIS OF FINDINGS.........................................................95
  6.1 Analysis of themes and sub-themes from newspapers..........................................................96
  6.2 Analysis of themes and sub-themes from interview responses...........108

CHAPTER 7: CONCLUSION........................................................................116
  7.1 The silence of HIV-positive mothers in news coverage about PMTCT..........................................................116
  7.2 The framework of the news media’s engagement with women’s health in the realm of PMTCT..........................................................120
  7.3 The extent to which media can facilitate the development of women’s health in the realm of PMTCT..........................................................123
  7.4 From the margins- a working model for media for development........126

REFERENCES..............................................................................................129

APPENDIX
  A: Participation Information Leaflet
  B: Interview Guide
  C: Paraphrased Interviews
  D: Newspaper articles