In the past two decades, questions about sexual health have become of pressing concern in light of the global rise of the HIV epidemic. Statistics show that young people in sub-Saharan Africa make up the largest percentage of the African population infected with HIV and heterosexual sex is argued as the predominant mode of transmission. There is a growing body of research seeking to understand social determinants such as poverty, gender inequality and violence that contribute broadly to the sexual-wellbeing of young South Africans, however, the impact of religion on the sexual lives of adolescents, despite an overwhelming majority of adolescents reporting close religious affiliation, is not enquired about much nor is it well understood.

This study is an exploration and investigation of the intersection of religion and the sexual perceptions, practices and wellbeing of adolescent South Africans. Using a case-study of Teens Ignited (TI), a Charismatic Pentecostal Youth Group in Potchefstroom, a town 100 kms West of Johannesburg, this study in an exploration of the impact of the discourse of sexuality identified at TI, as well as the power relations that impact on the way members of TI understand and experience their sexuality.

Using participatory research methods and a survey questionnaire, the perceptual and behavioral sexual patterns reported by the membership of TI is examined and critical insights about the positive and negative contributions of religion to the sexual-wellbeing of the participants of this study are discussed. Drawing largely on Foucauldian understandings of sexuality as a discursive project, the religious messages and power present at TI are analysed. The key findings of this study demonstrate that TI members have knowledge of the official message about sexuality at TI, however, discontinuities and disjuncture identified between the dominant discourse and lived experiences of TI members raise concerns about negative impacts of religion on the way TI members negotiate their sexual lives. The aim of this study is to provide theoretical frameworks related to sexuality and religion as a basis for understanding how the negative contributions of religion to adolescent sexual-wellbeing due to inadequate messaging and unequal relations of power can be redressed and positive contributions such as the sense of belonging TI members experience can be strengthened.
I declare that this dissertation is my own unaided work. It is submitted for the degree of Master of Arts in the University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg. It has not been submitted before for any other degree or examination in any other university.

______________________________
Tessa Gilda Dooms

30th day of September 2010
Dedication

To Elliot and Irene Dooms,

any success I have or will ever have is a tribute to you.

Acknowledgements

First, I wish to acknowledge and thank my God, Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, the one who has granted me the time, ability and desire to do this research. I love You.

Ntate Paul Germond, you are a dedicated scholar and you have proven to be a supervisor who is as committed to the student behind the project as you are to the scholarly exercise. Your input in this project has been invaluable and your support of me has been remarkable. I have been able to count on you every step of the way, at even the most difficult times in your own journey and for this I remain grateful. You have my love and respect always.

To Dionne Klein, Aidan Mosehlon, Kieth Pietersen and Sepetla Molapo who so willingly volunteered time as research assistants in the field. Your commitment shown to this project is testament of your love for knowledge; desire to make an impact in the world, your love for young people and the sincerity of your friendship. To my ARHAP colleagues who have shown interest in this project and are in your own work contributing to bodies of knowledge related the intersection of religion and health; you have supported and inspired me. Thank you. To my friends and church family at MCM, you have supported and celebrated me more than I could have imagined. Thank you all for being continuing to believe in my work.

To Professors Johan Zaaiman and Freek Cronje and the rest of my colleagues and friends at the NWU School of Social and Government Studies, you have provided me with a wonderful opportunity to teach but also the even greater gifts of time, understanding and support while I undertook this study. I take this opportunity to extend my sincere love and appreciation to you.

Finally, to my family who has been the greatest support system anyone could ask for, I love you all. Ma and Dad, every success I have had and will ever attain is not my own, but yours. You have motivated and selflessly enabled me to reach goals I had never imagined possible. I love you both dearly and thank God for the blessing of wonderful parents. To Ruth, Phoebe, Dean and Stephan, you are my siblings and friends and believe in me more than I have believed in myself. Thank you. To my nieces and nephews, I love you and trust that what I do with these studies will impact on your lives profound ways.
Table of Contents

- Declaration
- Dedication
- Acknowledgments
- Table of Contents
- List of Figures

Chapter 1  Introduction

- Research Question
  - Teens Ignited
  - Potchefstroom
- Background
- Methodology
  - Participatory Research Methods
  - The Workshops: Participatory Inquiry into Religion and Adolescent Sexuality (PIRASH)
- Access and Limitations
- Outline of Chapters

Chapter 2  Rationale: Youth Culture, Sexuality and Religion in South Africa

- Contemporary Adolescence
  - Defining Adolescence
  - Negotiating Identity, Religion, Intimacy and Sexuality during Adolescence
- Sexual Behaviour and HIV Risk
- A culture of risky behaviour
- Religiosity among Adolescents
- Policy and the role of Religion in HIV messaging
  - Sexual Regulation through Law
  - Youth Religion and HIV Policy
- Overview of Literature: Adolescent Sexuality in S.A
  - Youth Sexuality and Sexual-wellbeing

Chapter 3  Conceptual frameworks toward Understanding Sexual-Wellbeing, Discourse, Religious Power and the Body

- Defining Adolescent Sexual-wellbeing
- Sexuality, Religion and Power
- Sexuality as a discursive project
  - Religion setting the sexual agenda
  - Religious Power: Pentecostal-Charismatic Christianity and Teens Ignited
- Religious Power, Sexuality and the Body
  - Exterior and Interior Body
  - The Social Body
  - Religious Bodies
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Chapter 4</th>
<th>Discourse, Disjuncture and Discontinuity: The Relationship Between Messaging and Practice</th>
<th>65</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Understanding the dominant discourse</td>
<td>67</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>No sex before marriage</td>
<td>67</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Religious messaging about sex: Influential or Irrelevant?</td>
<td>73</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Competing Discourses</td>
<td>74</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sources of Information as Sources of Power</td>
<td>76</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Exterior Body as a Source of Information about Sexuality</td>
<td>77</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Relevance of the Message vs. the Power of Religion</td>
<td>78</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Relevance of Marriage</td>
<td>79</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Continuities, Discontinuities and Disjuncture</td>
<td>80</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Knowledge vs. Behaviour</td>
<td>81</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What constitutes Sex?</td>
<td>87</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Crisis of Marriage</td>
<td>88</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Power Relations, Religion and Sexual-wellbeing</td>
<td>91</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Centrality of Belonging</td>
<td>92</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Chapter 5</th>
<th>Conclusions: Theoretical Considerations and Recommendations</th>
<th>96</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Religious Power, Discourse and sexual wellbeing</td>
<td>98</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Holistic Sexual Wellbeing: Religion and Sexual Health</td>
<td>100</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Recommendations for Teens Ignited</td>
<td>102</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Making the discourse Inclusive and Responsive</td>
<td>103</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Internalisation: From Knowledge to Belief</td>
<td>105</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mobilising the Social Body</td>
<td>106</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Synopsis</td>
<td>107</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

| Bibliography | 110 |

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Appendix One</th>
<th>125</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Participant Inquiry into Religion and Sexual Health: Version 2. Facilitators Guide</td>
<td>125</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Figure 1. People living with HIV, by region end 2007.

Figure 2. Most important messages about sex received at the youth group by percentage.

Figure 3. Most important sources about sex and sexuality for young people (by exact no of responses).

Figure 4.1. Reported sexual practices of female participants (ages 13-21 by percentage).

Figure 4.2. Reported sexual practices of male participants (ages 13-21 by percentage).

Figure 5.1. Reported perceptions related to Christian teachings about sexuality
Male participants (ages 13-25).

Figure 5.2. Reported perceptions related to Christian teachings about sexuality
Female participants (ages 13-25).

Figure 6.1. Exercise 4. Scenario 2
Response index by gender and age.

Figure 6.2. Exercise 4. Scenario 4
Response index by gender and age.