

https://dspace.org/

Perceptions about different shades of skin colour and attitudes towards pigmentation in the 'black' African community

Nkwadi, Palesa

2016
http://hdl.handle.net/10539/19694

Downloaded from a DSpace repository. https://dspace.org/

Table of Contents

Declaration…….....i

Acknowledgements…….....……...…….ii

Abstract…….....……...iv

Chapter one…….....……..1

1.1 Introduction……..…….....…….....1

1.2 Statement of the problem and rationale for the study…….....……..….....3

1.3 Purpose of the study……..…….....6

1.4 Definition of key concepts……..…….....6

1.5 Limitations...…….....8

1.6 Organisation of the report……..…….....8

Chapter two.....9

2.1 Introduction to literature review…..…….....….9

2.2 Shade of skin tone and the importance of theories of prejudice development….....9

2.2.1 Social learning theory…….....….9
2.2.2 Piaget's theory…….....…11
2.2.3 Erikson's theory…….....…..11
2.2.4 Relative deprivation, dissatisfaction and resentment…….....….....12
2.2.5 Stigmatised groups…….....……..13

2.3 Skin tone and privilege: The historical context.....….....13

2.3.1 Racism, apartheid and colonial legacy…….....……13
2.3.2 Black consciousness…….....……13
2.3.3 Colonial influence…….....14
2.3.4 Impact of racism…….....……..15
2.3.5 Trauma, scape-goating and fear…….....……..19
2.3.6 'Racial jealous'.....…….....……..21

2.4 Skin tone and race: views on Colourism…….....….……...….23

2.4.1 Colourism and the family context…….....……..…25

2.5 Racism and Psychology…….....……....27

Conclusion…….....……...30

2.6 Effects of skin tone: psychosocial outcomes….....……....30

2.7 Social perception and media influence…….....……..32

2.8 Identity…….....……37

2.9Conclusion….....……..…..38

2.10 Theoretical framework…….....….38

Chapter three…….....……40

3.1 Introduction…….....……40

3.2 Research questions…….....……..40

3.3 Primary aim…….....…40

3.4 Research objectives…….....……40

3.5 Research strategy…….....……41

3.6 Research design…….....……..41

3.7 Research methodology…….....……..…42

3.7.1 Sampling procedures…….....…...42
3.7.2 Research instrumentation…….....….....43
3.7.3 Method of data collection…….....……....44

3.8 Rationale for inclusion of items in interview schedule…….....……..45

3.9 Pre-test…….....……48

3.10 Data analysis…….....…….48

3.11 Trustworthiness…….....…….49

3.12 Ethical considerations…….....50

3.12.1 Informed consent…….....……...51
3.12.2 Confidentiality…….....……..….51
3.12.3 Voluntary participation…….....……...51
3.12.4 Emotional distress and counselling…….....……52
3.12.5 Non maleficence…….....……52
3.12.6 Beneficence…….....……...52
3.12.7 Feedback…….....……..……52

3.12.8 Ethics clearance…….....……...…..53

3.13 Chapter summary…….....……..53

Chapter four…….....……...54

4.1 Introduction…….....…….54

4.2 Demographic details…….....……54

4.3 Different ethnic groups that participated in the research….....…….55

4.4 Summary of categories and themes…….....…….55

4.4.1 Perceptions regarding beauty and attractiveness….....……....……..56
4.4.1.1 Views around pigmentation…….....…..57
4.4.1.2 Body image…….....….....60
4.4.1.3 Perceptions and attitudes…….....….62
4.4.2 Psychosocial factors…….....……64
4.4.3 Colourism…….....….72
4.4.4 Interaction analysis……...….....…...74

4.5 Summary of chapter…….....……76

Chapter five: main findings, conclusions and recommendations…….....78

5.1 Summary of main findings…….....…….…78

5.2 Conclusion…….....…….80

5.3 Recommendations…….....……..81

5.3.1 Social work practice…….....….……...81

5.4 Further research…….....…..……..…82

6.1 Reference list…….....…..…….120

LIST OF TABLES

Table 1 Rationale for interview schedule……45

Table 2 demographic details……....54

Table 3 Categories and themes……55

LIST OF FIGURES

Figure 1 Showing the different ethnic group that participated in the research……..55

LIST OF APPENDICES

Appendix A LupitaNyongo article……..84

Appendix B Interview with Elsa Barkley-Brown……86

Appendix C Themes, sub-themes and quotations……...101

Appendix D Self-reflection……127

Appendix E Semi-structured interview……...130

Appendix F Participant consent form…….....132

Appendix G Ethics clearance certificate……133

Appendix H Participant information sheet…….....134

Appendix I Consent form for audio-taping…….....…..135