

Declaration	ii
Abstract	iii
Acknowledgements	v
Figures	xi
Acronyms	x
1 Introducing Provincial Scale Planning
1.1 Provinces...A Bright Idea?	2
1.2 Impact on Planning	3
1.3 Objectives of the Research	4
1.4 Identifying the Problem	6
1.5 The Philosophical Stance	7
1.6 Methodology	9
1.7 Structure of the Research Report	10
2 Towards a New Regionalist Agenda: Regional Planning in the 21st Century
2.1 Unlocking the Padlock of Developmental Potential	13
2.2 New Regionalism and the Rise of the Region	16
2.3 Devolution and the Rise of the Region	18
2.4 Regional-Scale Planning: A Strategic Approach	23
2.5 Unpacking Strategic Planning	25
2.6 A Quest for a Sound Planning Polity	27
2.7 Strategic Planning in the UK	31
2.7.1 Devolution and the Rise of Regional-Scale Planning In the UK	33
2.7.2 Strategic Planning in Wales	34
2.7.3 Plan for Wales 2001	35
2.7.4 People, Places, Futures: Wales Spatial Plan	38
2.8 Strategic Planning in Netherlands	40
2.8.1 The Netherlands' Strategic Planning System	41
2.8.2 Re-Defining Provincial Planning: Groningen, Netherlands	44
2.9 The Indian Planning Experience	47
2.9.1 Sub-national Planning in India	49
2.9.2 Challenges of Indian Multi-level Planning System	50
2.10 Lessons for Developing Countries	52
3 A Sphere for Influence or a Sphere with Influence? Provincial-Scale Planning in Post-Apartheid South Africa
3.1 Provincial Planning in South Africa – Together...Hand in Hand	55
3.2 In Search of a Compromise: Cooperative Governance in South Africa	56
3.3 The Province as a Sphere for Political Influence	58

3.4 Intergovernmental Planning in South Africa	60
3.5 Planning at Local Level	62
3.6 Planning at National Level	65
3.6.1 The MTSF and the MTEF: Budgetary Planning Instruments
3.6.2 The National Spatial Development Perspective (NSDP)	66
3.7 Provincial-Scale Planning	70
3.7.1 The Provincial Growth and Development Strategy (PGDS)	71
3.7.2 Current Status of the PGDS Implementation	74
3.7.3 Roles and Functions of a Developmental Provincial Sphere	76
3.8 Political Legitimacy through Strategic Planning	78
3.9 A Deciding Moment for South African Provinces?	81

4 In Search of A New Horizon: Mpumalanga Provincial Growth and Development Strategy

4.1 Introducing Mpumalanga – Place of the Rising Sun	83
4.2 Mpumalanga: The Socio-Economic Context	84
4.3 A Review of the Mpumalanga PGDS	86
4.3.1 The Process	87
4.3.2 Challenges to the Process	90
4.4 Assessing the PGDS	92
4.4.1 The Content	93
4.4.2 The Harmonisation of the PGDS with National and Local Strategies	95
4.4.3 Responsive Management and Governance	97
4.4.4 The Implementation Plan	98
4.5 Missing.....A Spatial Component	101
4.6 A Way Forward	106

5 To Conclude...Some Policy Recommendations

5.1 A Strategic Planning System in the Making	109
5.2 Promoting Provincial Legitimacy	110
5.3 Getting the Provincial Plans Right	111
5.4 Making the Provincial Plans more Binding	114
5.5 Moving away from Weak, Empty Provincial Plans
5.6 Incorporating the Spatial Dimension into the PGDS	115
5.7 The PGDS Must Inform all Provincial Sector Plans
5.8 Cooperation between Provinces	116
5.9 Effective Communication Between all Spheres of Government	117
5.10 All Strategic Plans must Talk to Each Other	118
5.11 Sound Financial Management	119
5.12 Good Governance as a Key to Strategic Planning	120
5.13 To Conclude...	121

Referencing Material

References	126
Bibliography	134
Appendix A: The Questionnaire	135
Appendix B: Article on Provincial Spending	136
Appendix C: Information on Mpumalanga	137
Appendix D: Those Interviewed	139