

https://dspace.org/

Weapons of mass provocation: The visual language of the political cartoon in the work of Zapiro and Ramirez, 2001-2005

Amato, Carlos

2006-11-16T09:46:34Z
http://hdl.handle.net/10539/1786

Downloaded from a DSpace repository. https://dspace.org/

Contents

1. Introduction 6

2. Literature Review 9

3. Tooning the odds: Zapiro 12

Lines of attack: Zapiro's early work

Finding a (double) voice

Splicing voices: Zapiro in metacartoon mode

4. Shooting at the wounded: Ramirez 33

US against them: Ramirez and the clean line

The president's fool: Ramirez on American politics

5. Zapiro and Ramirez: a comparison 57

Heads of state: caricaturing Bush and Mbeki

Paying (dis)respects: the obituary cartoon

Touching raw nerves: cartooning Israel and Palestine

6. References 78

7. Appendix: interview with Zapiro