

https://dspace.org/

South Africa's Diplomatic Involvement as a Peace-broker In West Africa: The Case of Cote d'Ivoire

Rametsi, Shadrack

2007-03-01T11:20:45Z
http://hdl.handle.net/10539/2173

Downloaded from a DSpace repository. https://dspace.org/

CONTENTS

Chapter 1: Introduction 1

1. Significance of study 2

2. Research questions 3

3. Aim and rationale 3

4. Organization of work 4

Chapter 2: Houphouet Boigny and the present Ivorian conflict 6

1. Felix Houphouet Boigny's era 6

2. Henry Konan Bedie's presidency 9

3. The regime of Robert Guei 11

4. Gbagbo'a administration and events of 2002 13

Chapter 3: Root causes of conflict in Cote d'Ivoire 15

1. Battle over limited resources 15

2. Political dimension: politics of inclusion vs. politics of exclusion 18

3. Relative deprivation theory and ethnic polarization 21

Chapter 4: Giving mediators a chance: perspective on peace 25

1. The Linas Marcoussis peace agreement 26

    1.1 Ceasefire 26

    1.2 The Government of National Reconciliation 26

    1.3 Citizenship and identity 27

    1.4 The judiciary system 28

    1.5 Revisiting article 35 29

    1.6 Demobilization and disarmament programme 29

1.7 Analysis of the Libas-Marcoussis Agreement 30

2. The Accra accords 31

3. Pretoria accords 35

Chapter 5: Why South Africa? 38

1. AU and ECOWAS's search for a credible third party and neutral mediator 39

1.1 A non-African mediator: France 39

1.2 An African mediator: Nigeria 41

2 The United Nations and South Africa 43

Chapter 6: South Africa and the Ivorian conflict: interests and constraints 47

1. South Africa's national interests 47

1.1 Improving South Africa's profile 47

1.2 Restoring peace and stability in Africa 49

1.3 Enhancing South Africa's business market on the continent 50

1.4 Facilitating the vision of African Standby Force 51

1.5 Strategic South Africa's international interests in the United Nations 51

2. Conditions constraining South Africa's role in Cote d'Ivoire 52

2.1 Linas Marcoussis agreements 52

2.2 Key regional players in the Ivorian conflict 53

2.3 Perceived power struggle between South Africa and Nigeria for the soul of Africa 57

Chapter 7: Conclusion 60

Bibliography 68