

https://dspace.org/

Re-imagining the self : an exploration of the applied drama technique role play in the development of life skills amongst orphaned and abused teenage girls. The case study of orphaned teenagers at "The House" shelter, Berea, Johannesburg.

Marovatsanga, Gift Tapiwa

2011-04-26
http://hdl.handle.net/10539/9618

Downloaded from a DSpace repository. https://dspace.org/

Consent Letters.

THE HOUSE
Serving the Girl Child on the Street

THEOSIS
60 Olivia rd,
Berea, Johannesburg
Tel:+27 (11)642-9656 Tel/Fax: +27 (11)642-4358
PO Box 18557, Hillbrow, Johannesburg, 2038, South Africa
Email: thehouse@theosis.org Web: http://theosis.org/thehouse

01 October 2009

Dear Gift

Thank you for choosing to do your research within our organization. I have read your proposal and letter which you wrote seeking permission to conduct your research here and I think your research is very relevant.

Part of our aims at The House Shelter are to provide an alternative for those girls who perceive themselves as trapped in life on the street, to provide these children with the necessary skills to make reintegration possible, to reintegrate these children into society and with their families. You indicated in your letter that your research will focus on enhancing life skills using role play, and I find this very interesting and we are looking forward to see how the girls will benefit your research.

Please call me or come to the shelter so that we talk about how we will work together to realize the goals of your research. Looking forward to working with you.

Yours Sincerely

Sister Adelaide Molaba
(Social Worker-The House Shelter)

10-23708

FR#: 01 100919 00 3, Exempt from Income Tax Section 10 (1)(f), and from Estate Duty.
Registered in terms of Section 30 of the Child Care Act. Member of the international Theosis Group of care services for the girl child.
printing by the girls at Kululu Skills Centre