

INSTITUTIONAL CULTURE AND CHANGE:

STAFF AND PUPILS' PERCEPTIONS

By
Phethile Zitha

11/24/2008

A dissertation submitted to the School of Human and Community Development, Faculty of Humanities, University of Witwatersrand, Johannesburg. In partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Arts of Clinical Psychology, under the supervision of Dr. Kgamadi Kometsi

Johannesburg, November 2008

Abstract

As a country that has undergone socio-political changes in the recent past, South Africa is still developing in many respects. The education system has moved from a separate education policy for the different races to a multicultural education system. This research, therefore, proposes to investigate the extent to which these policy changes are implemented and responded to at schools, as well as the experiences and the perceptions of both teachers and pupils of racial integration at their school. The aim of this project to explore, recognize and at least attempt to understand the mechanisms and the processes that are present at schools as integrating institutions. Additionally this project aims to look at the relationship between the institutions' culture and change as well as how both teachers and pupils experience and make sense of the school's ethos and change (or lack thereof).

Individual interviews were conducted with six pupils from grade 10 to grade 12, two participants from each grade, and with three staff members from Rose High School. Thematic content analysis was used to analyze the data to highlight and breakdown both manifest and hidden ideas or perceptions held by staff and the pupils around issues of institutional culture, and change at their school, which in turn helped in interpreting meaning from the data that was be collected.

The findings show that despite some positive shifts, the lack of change in the language use, 'academic culture', assimilation instead of real integration and Black deprecation are reflective of the lack of change in the institutional culture of the school. These in turn inhibit transformation by maintaining the status quo, setting aside competence and privilege for White learners while lack of discipline and incompetence is left to African learners.

Declaration

“I declare that this research project is my own, unaided work. It has not been submitted before any other degree or examination at this or any other university”

Signature:

Date : 24 November 2008

Table of Contents

Title Page.....	i
Abstract.....	ii
Declaration.....	iii
Table of Contents.....	iv-v
Acknowledgments.....	vi
 Chapter 1: Literature Review	1-14
1.1 Aims and Rationale.....	1-2
1.2 Literature.....	3-14
1.3 Research Questions.....	14
 Chapter 2: Methods	15-19
2.1 Reflexivity of Qualitative Research.....	15
2.2 Context of the Study.....	15-16
2.3 Sample.....	16
2.4 Instrument.....	17
2.5 Procedure.....	17
2.6 Analysis.....	17-18
2.7 Ethical Considerations.....	19
 Chapter 3: Results and Discussion.....	20-34
3.1 Language and Language Policy.....	20-23
3.2 'Academic Culture'	23-27
3.2.1Influx of African learners
3.3 Teacher-pupil Interaction.....	27-30
3.3.1 Teachers going the extra mile
3.2.2 Unity in Diversity
3.4 'Culture'	30-34

3.4.1 Assimilation
3.4.2 Black Deprecation
3.4.3 Positive Shifts
3.5 Conclusion	35-36
3.6 Strengths and Limitations	37
3.7 Recommendations	38

Reference list

Appendices

Appendix A

Interview Schedule

Appendix B

Information Sheet

Appendix C

Participant Consent form

Appendix D

Audio tape consent form

Appendix E

Assent Form (Parent permission)

Appendix F

Access Letter

Acknowledgments

I would like to thank the Lord for His strength and for the grace that He has shown me throughout the year, once again He did it; my working friends, the BBBEEE research crew, “writing centre consultants” friends, and my family for their support, prayers and encouragement; the Clinical masters team, and my colleagues, I have learnt so much from you guys. Many thanks to Ms Lorraine Sebite from the Department of Education, in Roodeport for her assistance as well as Mr C. Van der Merwe, Ms Mapola and Mr. Cloete. Thank you to all my participants for giving me their time and for their honest inputs. Finally, warm thanks to my supervisor; thank you Dr Kometsi for your interest that was an inspiration for those days when I just did not feel like typing a sentence, once again you made the year bearable, thank you Sir.