

https://dspace.org/

Lakatos revisited Innovation and Novel facts as a foundational logic for the social sciences in an era of Posttruth and pseudoscience

Christian Callaghan

https://hdl.handle.net/10539/29265
SCOPUS

Downloaded from a DSpace repository. https://dspace.org/

Taylor & Francis Online

Log in | Register

Journal

Cogent Business & Management ›

Volume 6, 2019 - Issue 1

Open access

39 Views | 0 CrossRef citations to date | 0 Altmetric

Listen

Review Article

Lakatos revisited: Innovation and 'Novel facts' as a foundational logic for the social sciences in an era of 'Post-truth' and pseudoscience

Chris William Callaghan | Lorenzo Ardito (Reviewing editor)

Article: 1672489 | Received 07 Jul 2019, Accepted 22 Sep 2019, Accepted author version posted online: 25 Sep 2019, Published online: 06 Oct 2019

Download citation

Check for updates

Full Article | Figures & data | References | Citations | Metrics

© Licensing | PDF

PDF Help

Abstract

In what seems to be a "post-truth" era this paper argues that management theory development is necessary to provide insights into how to manage the academic research, or discovery system, itself, as it no longer seems clear that its explicit purpose, as per Lakatos's argument, is the development of theory that predicts "novel facts." This logic questions the extent to which the social science research

In this article