

https://dspace.org/

Fighting terrorism without terrorizing : A discussion of non-military options for confronting international terrorism

Rutherford, Christina

2008-10-22T08:14:11Z
http://hdl.handle.net/10539/5780

Downloaded from a DSpace repository. https://dspace.org/

"Fighting Terrorism without terrorizing: A Discussion of Non-military Options for Confronting International Terrorism"

By Christina Rutherford
ID: 0617068D

Abstract

This paper discusses non-military options for confronting international terrorism. It investigates the non-military discourse contained in United Nations and United States policy documents. It then compares the principles in the discourse to the reality of the counter-terrorism policies of the last five years. Finally it looks at what alternative options are being presented in the academic and think-tank literature, to current counter-terrorism practices.