

our contributors

A. NAPIER BOYCE is Rector of the Johannesburg College of Education and Chairman of the Editorial Board of Symposium. Wellknown as an educational historian, he is Professor of Teacher Education at the University of the Witwatersrand. Publications include Europe and South Africa, Then and Now, Teaching History and Legacy of the Past.

HAROLD HOLMES, is a man who revelled in teaching and continues to do so in his retirement. Former Rector of JCE and Professor of Education at the University of the Witwatersrand, Dr. Holmes is widely appreciated for his capacity of analysis and for his wit.

LORD JAMES OF RUSHOLME, former Master of Manchester Grammar School and more recently responsible for the James Report, he has been at the centre of much lively educational controversy in recent years. Until recently he was Vice-Chancellor of York University.

ROBIN LEE is Director of the Educational Technology Unit at the University of the Witwatersrand. The Unit is concerned with the introduction of new teaching methods and media in the University. Dr. Lee was educated at the University of Natal, London and Essex and has his doctorate from the University of the Witwatersrand.

DON WALTON is an honours graduate in chemistry from the University of the Witwatersrand. Trained at JCE, he was awarded a bursary by the Witwatersrand Council for Education in 1971/72. He taught both O and A levels at Gordonstoun, with the result that he has first-hand knowledge of the subject of his article. He is at present teaching at Capricorn High School, Pietersburg.

H. H. MCGREGOR, a former Management Consultant, is a director and chairman of companies. An engineer of considerable experience, Mr. McGregor has long been concerned with what his American namesake called "The Human side of Enterprise".

CLIVE ACTON is the Head of the Education and Training Division of SEIFSA, one of the most influential and lively-minded Management organisations in South Africa. A double graduate, Mr. Acton has had experience in formal education as well as industrial.

SISTER H. BRAUCHLE was a Fourth Year student at JCE. She was interested in Comparative Education, and more especially in the study of Communist education, as her article demonstrates.

FRANKLIN PARKER of the University of West Virginia is one of the most notable authorities in Comparative Education in the United States today. He specialises in African education and has to his credit a list of books and articles too extensive for inclusion here. This article was based on a key-note address given at the Conference for Accelerated Development in Southern Africa.

BRIAN ROSE, Head of the Department of Educational Studies at JCE took over the editorial chair for Symposium 1973, due to Dr. Holmes' absence on vacation. Dr. Rose was the first editor, and occupied the chair from 1960 to 1963. Author and broadcaster, he specialises in the history of South African education.

LESLIE PROCTOR and EDITH N. E. VERSCHOOR are colleagues at the University of Fort Hare. Miss Verschoor lectures in English at the University, and Mr. Proctor, a former member of staff at Eton, is Director of the Language Laboratory and well known for his contributions to the development of Programmed Instruction in South Africa.

HONEY GLUCKMAN is a lecturer at JCE and at the University of the Witwatersrand. Specialising in Educational Philosophy, Mrs. Gluckman has a reputation for vivacity of approach as well as impeccable scholarship.

JAMES JARRETT is Associate Director of the Study Centre of the University of California. The Study Centre is situated in London, where Professor Jarrett, from the Berkeley Campus of the University of California, spends much of his time. Dr. Jarrett is an acknowledged authority on Dewey, and has written widely on philosophy, which is his field of specialisation. Dr. Jarrett spent some time in South Africa in 1972, when he was a guest of the University of the Witwatersrand at the Golden Jubilee Celebrations of that University.

PETER BEUGGER, a South African domiciled in Canada, is at present teaching at the Canyon Heights School, North Vancouver, British Columbia, where his interest is in Environmental Studies and Outdoor Schools. Mr. Beugger taught at the American School in Tokyo from 1967 to 1968, where he was a member of the Earth Science Curriculum Project. Mr. Beugger, who qualified at the Johannesburg College of Education in 1963, holds degrees from the Universities of South Africa and Portland.

HUW DAVIES, lecturer in Education at JCE, has classical interests. Actively involved in many aspects of South African education, he has been a guest lecturer at both the Rand University and the University of the Witwatersrand.

SALLY ANN KAY was a fourth year professional student at JCE. She was awarded the Transvaal Teachers' Higher Diploma with Distinction in 1972. This article was based on research that she completed that year.