ABSTRACT

This study examines the role of the media in the resource driven conflicts of the Niger Delta region of Nigeria. It examines the media strategies of the principal actors in an attempt to sway international sympathy to their political causes. It recognises the important role the media plays and interrogates the response of the local communities to the media.

The findings of this study show that the role of the media has hugely impacted the conflicts and the principal actors rely immensely on media-driven campaigns in pursuit of their political goals. However, the Nigerian media, due to the challenges it faces from its political economic structure, stands the risk of being manipulated by actors' public relations machinery and therefore, needs to focus on delivering to the Nigerian people and the Niger Delta citizens in particular, its corporate social responsibility role of public watchdog. While the media's impact on the conflict has generated both positive and negative effects, as the conflicts are still playing out, it is hoped that the media's role, would contribute to speeding up the conflict resolution process, which is still in its infancy.

DECLARATION

I declare that this thesis is my own unaided work.

It is submitted for the partial fulfilment for the degree of Masters of Arts in the Graduate School of the Humanities (International Relations Department) at the University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg.

It has not been submitted before for any other degree or examination in any other University.

DEDICATION

To my Father Chief Moses H. Bassey Abasiubong III, my Mother Lady Iquo M. Bassey, my Siblings David, Emem, Emmanuel, Samuel and Utom-Obong; this was worth the wait, thanks for the love and prayers.

To Almighty God, whose blessings, love and protection I have continually enjoyed.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to thank the Department of International Relations for its support throughout the duration of this second Masters Degree I have just completed. I thank the Vice Chancellor, Prof Loyiso Nonxga, Prof Rok Ajulu, Prof. Rod Alence, David Monyae, Dr Gwinyayi Dzinesa and Hazel. I would in particular like to thank my supervisor Dr. Abdul Lamin. Thanks also to Prof. Tawana Kupe, my Dean and former supervisor for the support and inspiration throughout the writing of this thesis; Prof, your insightful guidance was invaluable.

To my surrogate father and mentor, His Excellency Gen. Abdulsalami Abubakar, I say thanks for the love. To my adopted mothers and families here, Mrs Anne Pitt, Ms Victoria Segwai and Jennifer Becker, thanks for taking in this Nigerian kid into your hearts and homes.

To Prof. John Stremlau, your mentorship and support was awesome. I thank Elizabeth King and other friends; to my friend late Deborah McConnell I wish you were here today. I know you are smiling down at me up there. To the staff of the International Office, thanks guys for putting up with me.

To my friends, Ndianabasi Ukpe and Lisa, Tam George, Kwaku Asante-Darko, Ben Okolo and Dr Marcellin Zounmenou, who inspite of the problems with the post colony provided the support I needed to stay focused on the goal ahead. To all my other friends too numerous to mention, I acknowledge your love, help, prayers and support.

I acknowledge the prayers and support of my friends from Family Worship Centre, Abuja, Nigeria. Guys I know that I was always in your prayers.

I acknowledge the support and cooperation of all my respondents, like Ibibab Don-Pedro, Sofiri Joab-Peterside, Ogbonna Nwuke, Jahman Anikulapo and others (whom I can't mention for their own protection) for their contributions to this research.
